

ABSTRACT

An password management system is provided. The system typically includes a graphical user interface logic, which receives a current password from a user, prompts the user to determine whether to change the current password, and receive a new password if the user replies affirmatively. The system further includes password confirmation logic to confirm the current password with a switched access remote test system, and password administration logic to receive the new password and change the current password on the switched access remote test system. Methods and other systems are also provided.

5